JBSA Tax Program

Don't get taken by surprise on 18 April 2017 by the individual income tax return filing deadline. Filing your tax return does not have to be stressful, and there are many services available – many of them free – that make filing quite easy. Online programs are a popular and inexpensive way to electronically file your tax return. Military OneSource (MilitaryOneSource.mil) provides access to free tax preparation software with on-call assistance from tax professionals. This is available to active duty members, as well as Guard/Reserve members and dependents. The City of San Antonio also has numerous Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (vitaso.org) locations for anyone with income below $60k. You may also complete your taxes yourself or hire someone.

In addition to the options above, during tax season this year, the volunteers at JBSA-Fort Sam Houston, JBSA-Lackland, and JBSA-Randolph will each operate a tax center for eligible active duty members and retirees. The tax centers provide free tax preparation and electronic filing for federal and state tax returns.

To receive assistance at the JBSA Volunteer Tax Centers you must bring with you your Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement, and your Form 1095, required under the Affordable Care Act. These documents are available through myPay. Also, bring your Social Security card and the Social Security card of each individual you intend to claim as a dependent. If applicable to your financial situation, you must also bring the following:

Most recent tax return

December 2016 Leave and Earnings Statement

1099-INT or 1099-DIV to report any interest or dividends you received as income in 2016

1098 to report payment of mortgage interest and property taxes, if any

1099-B for stock sales in 2016 together with your cost basis for capital gain or loss calculations

1099-R to report any distributions from an IRA or 401k you've received in 2016

SSA-1099 to report any Social Security benefits received in 2016

If you've already received a 2016 state tax refund, you may need to report it as income.

1099-MISC if you have self-employment or miscellaneous income, outside of your regular job

If you do not have the correct documents, your volunteer tax preparer will not be able to help you. Finally, as the VITA program is changing software programs, please know that you will not have access to your old returns through a VITA tax office.
